Human Toxicological Evaluation

According to the legal obligations of § 30 LFGB (German Code on Foodstuff, Consumer Articles and Feedstuff) and based on the qualitative and quantitative recipe and the human toxicological properties of the used ingredients (raw materials), and taking into consideration relevant exposure scenarios for consumers

„AKEMI Steinreiniger“ (Stone Cleaner) and „AKEMI Quartz Intensive Cleaner“ are to be regarded as

for the intended use to clean surfaces which may have contact with foodstuff.

The basis of this evaluation are:

1. Toxicological evaluation of all raw materials (ingredients) with respect to their potency and their concentration in the evaluated recipes.
2. Toxicological evaluation of the final product considering the product formula (recipe) in comparison to the practice of use and to safety relevant considerations.
3. Toxicological evaluation of the intended and reasonably foreseeable use conditions taking into account the respective exposure scenarios.
4. additional elements as information for safe use and warning phrases

The evaluation was performed by taking into account all relevant documents, with further consideration of specific national and/or international recommendations together with expert experience and state of the art toxicological knowledge.
